

Swiss Association of Women Engineers SVIN

Network, platform for the exchange of experience and career development!

Founded in 1991, the association aims to increase the attractiveness of STEM professions for women, to represent the interests of STEM women in public, to provide a platform for the exchange of experiences and networking, and to attract more young women to STEM professions. Today, the SVIN comprises more than 310 women engineers, computer scientists, physicists, mathematicians as well as natural scientists (STEM women) and 43 supporting members, all medium to large companies as well as associations and universities that rely on the work of women engineers and women from the STEM fields.

As a professional association, the SVIN sees itself as a representative of the interests of qualified and motivated women professionals in the STEM fields.

What we do

- Illustrate the attractiveness of STEM professions; convey modern role models and thus motivate young women for STEM professions (promotion of young talent),
- Promote and maintain the exchange of experience and cooperation among SVIN women and with related organisations (network building),
- Together with supporting members, improve the working and general conditions for STEM women and create added value for companies thanks to diversity and inclusion measurements (gender-equal career promotion).

What we offer our members

Individual members of SVIN have access to a wide range of offers such as:

- Receipt of the INFO mailing with numerous information on events of the SVIN and its partners, external interesting offers, job offers from the industry and much more.
- Participation in events such as regulars' tables (e.g. @Zurich every two months), webinars, networking events with supporting members.

- Access to affordable training opportunities (organized by SVIN or by network partners)
- Access to a nationwide network of women with a technical and scientific background.

Offer for refugee STEM women

The SVIN wants to support STEM women in Switzerland. This also and in particular applies to STEM women who have had to flee their home countries and have now found a temporary or long-term place to stay in Switzerland. We offer all these women a free membership for one year. They can take advantage of all SVIN offers, make contacts with other STEM women and thus facilitate their entry into the working world in Switzerland. Are you interested? Then simply fill out the registration form (<https://svin.ch/wordpress/de/mitgliedschaft/anmeldeformular-einzelmitglied/>) and note "gemeinsam stärker" or "stronger together" in the text field.
